COCA Update on WorkSafeBC Activities #488 September 20, 2010

The following information has been supplied by Don Schouten of WorkSafeBC and is distributed for the information of COCA members.

Bridging the gap 2010 Construction Safety Conference

The two-day Construction industry safety conference is part of professional development for safety professionals. The certification courses are on Friday, November 19 and the conference is on Saturday, November 20, 2010. Special attention will be given to the Crane certification process.

This conference seeks to inspire individuals employed on construction sites throughout B.C. to search out, expand, and capitalize on learning opportunities that will ultimately enhance their careers in the field of health and safety. The theme “Bridging the gap” focuses directly on the need for continuous professional development, and provides participants with the opportunity to learn and discuss a variety of health and safety issues as identified in the WorkSafeBC, Construction High-Risk Strategy as well as issues currently facing the industry while networking with their peers.

To find more information on the courses/sessions offered and registration forms please visit the conference website at:
